Amish family's cash stolen

Last Thursday afternoon, cash was taken from the buggy belonging to an Amish man who was selling fresh vegetables in front of the Farmers Deposit Bank on U.S. 27 South. Ptl. Nathan Linville said the call to police was actually made by one of Jacob Yoder's customers. She told police that Yoder told her about the theft and she in turn called the police.

Linville said very little information was available about the suspect's vehicle, only that it was blue. He said $5 and $10 bills were removed from the cash box and $1 bills were left behind.

It is unknown how much money was taken, Linville said.

Woman arrested on heroin charges

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

Just after midnight Wednesday morning, Cynthiana Police officers were attempting to serve a warrant for one subject when chance handed them a heroin arrest.

Ptl. Michael Kiskaden, Sgt. Eric Kendall and Ptl. Justin Jett were at an apartment on Fifth Street where Steven Fogle was known to frequent. Fogle had allegedly failed to make a scheduled court appearance and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

In the course of searching for Fogle at the apartment, police peered through the window of the apartment and witnessed Osie Dominique Jackson packaging small amounts of heroin.

Kiskaden arrested Jackson, 31, charging her with first degree trafficking in a controlled substance, first degree possession of controlled substance (heroin), possession of drug paraphernalia and tampering with physical evidence.

Kiskaden said when Jackson realized police were knocking at the door, she attempted to conceal the heroin in her bra.

Jackson was taken to the Bourbon County Detention Center.

A/C units target of recent thefts

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

The Harrison County Sheriff's Department reported an unusual spike in thefts of central air conditioners from at least three county homes last week. Deputies speculated that the units were likely stolen for their supply of copper and scrap metal.

Though theft and vandalism of central and window air conditioning units for copper tubing and scrap are nothing new to the area, Sheriff's Deputy Dean Hutchison noted that these types of burglaries have not been all that prevalent this year.

Since last May, and prior to the crimes last week, there have been only three reported incidents of stolen air conditioners. Of those, according to police records, two were portable window units.

The three units involved last week were central air conditioning units.

Two of those units were reported stolen on Monday afternoon, July 25.

Joe Gribble, who resides on Berry-Kelat Road, reported the first theft at his home around 3:30 p.m.

The second report came two hours later from Aaron Jackson. The air conditioning unit had been cut from his home on Edward Road.

Investigator takes on cases to help those wrongly convicted

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

When it comes to conducting a homicide investigation, private detective Suzanne McComas prefers her cases cold. Especially when it involves a person wrongfully convicted of murder.

A relative newcomer to Harrison County, McComas is one who relishes the effort to set things right when the justice system fails.

It doesn't happen often, she said, but it does occur. Out of some 30 or 40 trials where defendant is convicted, there is a good chance that one of those convictions is wrong, McComas said.

Mistakes happen. A critical detail is missed. Investigators sometimes accept a witness at face value without checking all the facts, she said. When they occur, sometimes people get convicted of crimes they did not commit.

"There are a lot of good lawyers and law enforcement officers working every day against a lot of pressures," she said.

She understands those pressures. Before becoming a P.I., McComas served six years as a military police officer in the U.S. Air Force. Afterward, she was a certified officer in Arizona, serving in the Phoenix reserves.

But despite those pressures and the errors that they may cause, it is not okay to let a bad conviction stand and allow someone to pay the price for a crime they did not commit.

"If we let that happen, it's a perversion of the system," McComas said. "We have to be strong enough to stand up and admit when we're wrong."

She's been in private investigations since 1993.

McComas explored several branches within the private investigation field, from contract work for insurance companies to a two-year stint as a cold case homicide detective for America's Most Wanted.

Her break into the business came from her investigations where somebody died while in the custody of authorities.

"These are tough cases," McComas said. They force her to walk a tight line between the heightened emotions of law enforcement on one side and the demands of family members and attorneys wanting an explanation.

If a detective becomes known as a person willing to take on these kinds of cases, jobs will come from all over the country, McComas said.

"I have literally worked in every state in the union ... except Rhode Island for some reason, which is kind of weird," McComas commented.

These tough cases established her professional career, but it's in the world of cold case investigations where she feels she's found her niche.

These are the cases she prefers.

"I love delving into old cases," she said. It requires an analytical approach to investigation. "If I had my choice, I would do that more was on Thursday afternoon, July 28, from a home on Eureka Road that was under bank foreclosure. Russell Brunner reported the incident to the sheriff's office on behalf of the bank.

There is no way of knowing if these crimes are connected or just coincident, Hutchison said. But he is certain they were all taken for the value of the scrap metal inside them.

"We're not going to find these units hooked up to someone else's home," Hutchison said.

George Velat, owner of BA Maintenance Services Inc. in Cynthiana, said that he has received "too many calls" in the last few years to replace a/c units and repair the damage caused when thieves cut the systems from private homes.

Using bolt cutters to cut the wires and pipes connecting the unit to the house, burglars can remove a central unit in about five minutes, Velat explained. Then it is just a matter of breaking the unit down and trading in the scrap at a recycling center for cash, he said.

As of August 1, according to several brokers on-line, scrap copper is bringing about $3.20 per pound.

But while thieves may earn some quick cash to finance their drug habit, homeowners are in for a headache of a repair process, Velat said. It takes a minimum of two days to replace a stolen central air conditioning system.

"We have to spend one day with a vacuum pump on the central system to remove all the moisture from the lines before we can install a new unit," Velat said.

Furthermore, Velat explained that "it's not a cheap fix." He estimated that repair costs would start at about $1,500 and climb from there.

Those with older central air systems can expect to spend a lot more because the EPA is restricting the manufacture of refrigerant to charge the old systems.

"Refrigerant [freon gas] is as expensive as buying a new unit. The average price is about $4.50 per ounce of refrigerant and units often need between 2 - 3 pounds," Velat said.

There are few products in the market to protect central air units. An exterior alarm system is available, Velat said, but it has not proven effective. He has known businesses to go to the expense of building cages around air conditioners with steel bars mounted in concrete, but most private homeowners are not interested in investing that kind of money.

A measure that may have some effect, Velat said, is a recent state law requiring that recycling businesses keep a register of every person who brings in scrap metals for money.

According to the law, which goes into effect in August, the register will require a photograph of each person bringing in scrap metal for money, a copy of their driver's license and the license number of the car they used to transport the metal.

"If all the recycling businesses cooperate with this law, it won't eliminate all the thefts, but it might cut down on them some," Velat said.

than anything."

McComas has put together an impressive track record of success in these investigations. Every case she has taken on has resulted in a determination either that the sentence was excessive or that the wrong person had been convicted.

The task is not easy. A conviction, especially in a homicide, is not just set aside because DNA doesn't match or another person confesses to the crime.

ear that he had seen it happen," McComas said. The child was 4 years old.

She quickly brought a social worker to sit in while the child related the whole tragic story in brutal detail, she said. "No investigator had thought to ask the child."

The screening process McComas undergoes in a wrongful conviction case is lengthy. She reviews about two or three cases a month and looks over them pretty hard.

"I don't want to turn anybody down out of hand. There is always a chance that something was missed or mishandled," she said.

Out of the 15 or so cases she reviews in a year, about two or three of them merit a deeper look.

The next step involves meeting the person. McComas credits herself with a good intuition. She has been in law enforcement long enough to tell when people are lying to her, she said.

"They have to be honest and they have to be forthcoming about their involvement, their culpability in the crime. They also have to take into account of what they have done since landing in prison," she said.

Agitation becomes apparent in McComas' voice when she recalls the circumstances of one case she was forced to abandon.

Reviewing the evidence, she was convinced that a prisoner had been wrongfully convicted of a serious charge.

But while serving time, this prisoner had become a major hoodlum within the prison. The convict couldn't keep from getting into trouble, McComas complained. He lied and persisted in compounding his own problems.

She could not get this person to save himself.

"To this day, I believe I could have helped this person. But I couldn't work with him. He wasn't honest and, eventually, I just had to walk away," she said.

These investigations are only a small aspect of McComas' body of work. She is the author of four books and has created a well-regarded rehabilitation program for prisoners preparing for release back into the world.

Her family made a farm out in Harrison County their home just a few years ago.

When not traveling around the country conducting interviews and reviewing old cases, she enjoys coming home to unwind.

The countryside provides a good buffer between her family life and work.

"Harrison County has been a perfect place for my family to settle," McComas said.

There's 200 years worth of experience looking at you

At a special called meeting of the Harrison County School Board Tuesday night, the administration and board members paid tribute to 11 people retiring from service to the school system and the community.

Seven of those people were able to attend the annual ceremony.

It's a pleasant ritual. The principals and department leaders take the time to talk about the contributions each retiree has made on the school system throughout their career.

Each person is then awarded a quality Cracker Barrell rocking chair (which I coveted) and honored with special recognition as a Kentucky Colonel.

It's a good reminder of the mark that every school employee makes on the school system. Education is one of those wonderful areas where everyone — absolutely everyone — involved has an opportunity to make an impact on students and co-workers.

That fact was clearly in evidence last night where teachers, maintenance personnel, and central office administrators were given equal time to be recognized and valued.

What an upbeat way to usher in the beginning of a new school year next week.

At the end of the presentation, Superintendent Andy Dotson made an observation that I found quite interesting.

He said that those retiring represented over 200 years worth of experience to Harrison County Schools. If one were inclined to split hairs, the math behind such an assertion may be slightly questionable. But it made me leaf back through my notes and pay particular attention to the years that each person had given to their career.

There was Debbie Biddle who was Colleagues had fun with such numbers. My favorite was Dotson claiming to have found references to Ogden in the latter chapters of The Bible.

However, the decades of service that these people have logged in with Harrison County Schools is something I fear is becoming a rare commodity these days.

Maybe not so much in education, but it doesn't seem so common anymore for large businesses and firms to reward or even value an employee's loyalty and experience. In fact, it's not an uncommon practice these days for a company to develop strategies designed with the specific intent of ushering their most experienced employees out the door in favor of younger, and most importantly, cheaper workforce.

Never mind about the value lost from the insight of those who have decades of experience to bring to the table. It is a sad story, and a sad comment on an organization's values, that some view decades of loyal, committed service as nothing more than a drag on a company's bottom line.

I wonder sometimes if this type of thinking has become too pervasive - particularly in our professional and economic culture.

I know full well that my perspective on this issue is grounded in the fact that I am middle-aged and don't relish the idea of being seen as moot or obsolete.

But the ritual that Harrison County Schools performed last night was some reassurance to me, on a personal level, that at least some of our established institutions recognize, and even celebrate, the value of experience as well as that of the new.

It's something that I hope we never forget.

retiring after 33 years of teaching computer technology.

High school principal Amy Coleman noted that Biddle once taught students how to work with computers with a bulky Commodore 64, saving data on a cassette tape.

(A note to those of us in our mid-40s and 50s: If you think its tough explaining to kids about the Commodore 64, try explaining a cassette tape to the download generation.)

None of the years of service credited to these people were small. There were quotes of 14 years, 28 years, and at least two people, Connie Reffett and Lloyd Ogden, were credited with over four decades of loyal service to Harrison County Schools.

Water day organizer says thanks for the support

To the editor:

I would just like to thank all of the community newspapers and volunteers involved in the first annual Community Water Day. We had a great turn out, with more than 400 people coming out to enjoy the festivities. It was a wonderful way for the community to come together and offer an event for the whole family. It would not have been possible without the support and donations of local businesses and people in the community. A big thank you to the fire department and the city as well. Hopefully next year we can have an even bigger water day! Thank you again to all that were involved. Great things can happen when a community pulls together!

He may not go so far as to say he's completely turning in his Wranglers and boots for khakis and ties, but Todd Brannock is moving from agriculture to administration.

Brannock, 38, who has been Harrison County High School's agriculture teacher for eight years, has assumed the role of assistant principal at the high school. He will be taking over the position vacated by Bow Switzer's move to Harrison County Schools' director of pupil personnel.

A graduate of Bourbon County in 1994, Brannock went on to complete his undergraduate studies at Eastern Kentucky University where he earned his bachelor's degree in agriculture education. He also earned his master's from ECU in instructional leadership/principalship. He just completed a Rank I in agriculture from the University of Kentucky.

While still attending school, Brannock taught four years in Bourbon County before making the move to Harrison County in 2007, again taking the vacancy left by Switzer, who was then moved to assistant principal.

Brannock and fellow assistant principal Jenny Nichols will share disciplinary duties as well as making sure students are prepared for career or college. Building maintenance will also be a shared responsibility for the assistant principals.

"I think it'll be a good transition," said Brannock. "I'm as nervous as a cat in a room full of rocking chairs."

Brannock said he will remain active in the agriculture community because that's where he got his start. However, the teaching will be turned over to two new agriculture teachers, Savannah Robin and Rebecca Russell.

Russell will be taking the position left by Nikki Jones, who moved to principal of the Harrison Area Vocational Center last October.

Brannock said he believes the agriculture program lends itself to leadership roles. Four former ag teachers have moved into principal roles. Brannock, Switzer, Jones and Todd Harp, who is assistant principal at Harrison County Middle School.

"I am humbled and honored to be a part of this school," Brannock said. "I feel blessed."

Brannock and his wife, Leann, who is an eighth grade math teacher at Harrison County Middle School, have two children, Sydney, 6, and Samuel, 5.

Brannock is a member of Ruddles Mills Christian Church, Kentucky Farm Bureau and Kentucky Association of Professional Educators.

"I want the kids to get here," Brannock said. "I'm anxious for this new role and to get started on the right foot."

Walls, ceiling damaged during wiring heist at Concept

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

Sometime before Tuesday, July 29, someone entered the Concept Packaging building and removed nearly all of the building's wiring.

Det. Alan Judy said

there was extensive damage to the building where the walls were cut into to expose the wire and the ceiling was ripped down.

"The damage is throughout the building," Judy said, noting that the warehouse is used as a storage area but the office is vacant.

Typically, once the wiring is taken from a building or other source, the outer coating is removed and wire sold for scrap, Judy said.

"It's most common for them to just burn it off," Judy said.

He is asking that anyone who saw anything suspicious or strange vehicles in the area to call the Cynthiana Police Department at 234-7157.

The building is owned by Merrill Northcutt.

The theft was reported by his son, Merrill Northcutt Jr.

Estimated cost of the damage was not available at press time.

Indictments issued in five cases

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

A Harrison County grand jury met Tuesday and returned felony indictments against four Harrison Countians.

Davi Demon Stanley, 21, will be placed under a $10,000 bond for two charges of selling or transferring a controlled substance (marijuana) to a minor, second or subsequent offenses, and two counts of second degree unlawful transaction with a minor.

According to the indictment, Stanley allegedly sold marijuana to two different minors on May 21, 2014.

Cpl. Walter Tapp of the Cynthiana Police Department (CPD) is investigating the case.

Thirty-five-year-old Miguel Ayala faces six counts of felony charges.

He is charged with first degree fleeing or evading police from an incident that occurred on May 29.

Ayala is also charged with three counts of second degree wanton endangerment, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or other substance which impairs one's driving ability, and first degree persistent felony offender.

CPD Ptl. Matt Royse is investigating.

Ayala's bond is $10,000.

Stephanie Keene, 28, in named in two indictments. The first contained two counts of theft by unlawful taking (firearms) and theft by unlawful taking under $500.

Keene is accused of taking a .38 caliber handgun and a shotgun belonging to Conrad Fritz between Feb. 21 and 24. She is also alleged to have taken other property from Fritz at the same time.

Det. Alan Judy of the CPD appeared before the grand jury as a witness in the case.

Her bond is $5,000 in the case.

A second indictment naming Keene asserts that on Oct. 18, 2013, she was in possession of a controlled substance (Cocaine) in the first degree, and drug paraphernalia.

Ptl. John Bright presented the case to the grand jury and her bond was set at $2,500.

John Sizemore, 33, is charged with receiving stolen property $500 or more but less than $10,000.

The grand jury contends that between Oct. 10 and 11, 2013, Sizemore had possession of property belonging to Wilson Casey, when he knew or had reason to believe the property had been stolen.

His bond is $2,500.

The grand jury recognized Deputy Dean Hutchison as a witness in the case.

Breast cancer survivor reminds others to keep faith in hard times

The call came when I was at a hospital in Lexington waiting for the arrival of my best friend's grandchild.

I didn't recognize the number but thought it was going to be awhile so I could take the call.

I recognized the voice immediately; it was the nurse from my gynecologist's office. I wasn't expecting a call from them because it had been over a month since I had seen the doctor and just as long since any test had been completed.

I recalled in my mind very quickly the sign I had read in his office that stated if a test is negative you would receive a letter, but if it's positive you would receive a call.

I took a deep breath and heard myself say, "Yes this is she."

The nurse said "We have the results from your mammogram and it shows 'some changes from your previous one.'"

I asked her to explain what that meant and she read the report verbatim. She went on to say that the

Tunya Adams
Columnist

LIVING HOPE ASSEMBLY OF GOD

radiologist recommended a repeat test in six months.

Now you have to understand, I'm 46 years old and the only reason I went for a mammogram a year ago was because my insurance covers the procedure in full. The only reason I went back again was for the same reason. I know it may sound crazy, but I wasn't expecting any results.

I hung up the phone, turned to my husband, told him what little knowledge I had and then called the first person I could think of, my friend who had breast cancer at a much younger age and was a survivor. But most important she was a lover of Jesus Christ.

I told her about the call and first she said, don't wait six months; second always ask for a second opinion and third she reminded me of her reliance on Jesus through that hard season in her life.

She shared with me how remembering the account of three Jewish boys who were sentenced to death told their captor, "the God we serve is able to save us and rescue us," (Daniel 3:17) but "even if he does not,

we want you to know we will not serve your gods or worship the image of gold you have set up" (Daniel 3:18).

Her testimony provoked boldness in my spirit.

I rescheduled my follow-up and for four months I told the enemy every chance I could that if this is not cancer, praise God, but if it is cancer, praise God.

Today, my sweet friend and I praise God our savior who is still able to save and rescue and who has blessed us to be cancer-free.

Rod Run organizers ready for third event

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

With only two weeks left before the third installment of the Cynthiana Rod Run on Saturday, Aug. 23, there is still plenty of opportunity for local businesses to get involved and benefit from the association, said Rod Run Committee Chair Jerry Adams.

The Poodle Skirt Contest and Best Tattoo Competition are still in need of local business sponsors, Adams said. And there is a great incentive to sponsoring one of these events: the opportunity to get its name in front of thousands upon thousands of spectators from Harrison County and the central Kentucky region.

If weather conditions are as good as they have been most of the summer, Adams expects huge numbers to turn out for the third edition of the Rod Run.

“It all depends on the weather, of course,” he said. “If it’s raining in the morning, some of the collectors won’t bring their cars out. If it rains in the afternoon, though, it won’t matter as much. Everyone will already be out.”

Adams estimates there could be as many as 2,000 vehicles on display throughout downtown Cynthiana for the Rod Run.

Classic cars and custom hot rods will populate most open spaces in downtown. Motorcycles will be located in front of the Cynthiana-Harrison County Public Library.

Custom tractor-trailers will be on display at Judy Construction, he added.

Those who attended the Rod Run last year can expect most of the same events this year.

The Rod Run will have an unofficial start on Friday night. The custom vehicles will be welcomed in all day for the cruise-in. There will be a car auction in the evening as well.

The Cynthiana-Harrison County Chamber of Commerce annually dedicates the Rod Run to a distinguished Harrison County citizen.

The 2014 Rod Run will be officially dedicated on Friday evening to local artist and entrepreneur Herby Moore.

THREE STAGES, LOTS OF ACTIVITY

On Saturday morning at 9 a.m., the Rod Run begins.

St. Edwards Catholic Church will sponsor a 5K Run out at the Cynthiana-Harrison County Airport. It will be the only Rod Run event conducted outside of downtown, Adams said.

Live music will be featured at Stage #2 (Whalen Insurance Parking Lot) with the Paw Paw Pickers Band and on Stage #3 (the corner of Pike and Walnut) with the Battlegrove Trio.

Other bands scheduled to perform during the day will be Sidewinder and the Eric Cummins Band, Adams said.

JoJo Gunn will end the Rod Run with a main stage show around the courthouse from 7 - 9 p.m.

The Kids Zone will run from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. in parking lot of the Cynthiana Presbyterian Church.

At noon on Stage 3, the popular Arm Wrestling contest will begin registration. The unsanctioned competition will be open to men and women’s classes and feature both left and right arm rounds, Adams said.

The other regular Rod Run features will make a return, including:

- Auto Systems’ “Sound Off” competition to compare custom car audio systems.
- The Pizza-Eating Contest from Snappy Tomato Pizza.
- The Ms. and Miss Cynthiana Rod Run 2014, sponsored by Rohs Opera House and organized by Kathy Himes.
- The Model Car Contest, which will be held at the Vault across the street from the Harrison County Courthouse.

“At some point, we’ll also work in a city-wide Cackle-fest too,” Adams said.

PARKING

With so many show vehicles occupying downtown, visitor parking will be limited, Adams said.

Parking lots at the Cynthiana Baptist Church and the First Church of God will be open for use. There will also be parking available at the Harrison County High School, though Adams was not certain how much shuttle service to downtown would be available.

Travelers needing to get through Cynthiana would be well advised to use the bypass instead of driving through downtown.

The drive down Main Street during the Rod Run will be a feast for the eyes, but it will be slow-going for through traffic, Adams said.

The best thing to do, he said, is find a parking space and enjoy the Cynthiana hospitality. There will be volunteers on hand to help people get where they’re going.

Adams took a moment to express his thanks for the business and civic organizations that are sponsoring special events and services. There is always room for volunteers to help with parking, event registration, welcoming visitors and especially cleaning up downtown on Saturday evening.

Those interested in helping can show up Friday or early Saturday morning to get a vest and find out what needs to be done.

Charlotte’s Web, Dracula on stage this fall

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

The theater season in Cynthiana will be an experiment in contrasts this fall when two productions of classic stories hit the stage.

The Rohs Theater Company is in the last month of rehearsal for the children’s classic “Charlotte’s Web,” which is set for performances in the last week of September.

On the heels of that production, the harriCYN Community Theater Group will present its version of the famous gothic horror, “Dracula,” for Cynthiana’s much anticipated Halloween celebration throughout October.

CHARLOTTE’S WEB

Though rehearsals have been ongoing since last May, Rohs has only recently gone public with the cast list for “Charlotte’s Web,” according to Rohs Theater Company artistic director James Smith.

Readers may be familiar with the famous children’s story by E.B. White of the runt pig, Wilbur, whose young life is saved by a farm girl named Fern and later by the creative imagination of Charlotte the spider and the other animals on Zuckerman’s farm.

Twenty-four people have been cast in this ambitious production, Smith said. Shelley Slade is directing the play.

The voice of Charlotte will be provided by Marie Bowen. David Bowen will portray Wilbur the Pig and Sophie Bolen will play Fern. Drew Hodge is Fern’s brother, Avery.

Playing the other barnyard animals will be AJ Hisle as Templeton the Rat; Gracie Furnish as Goose; Allison Combs as Gander; Sarah Bush as Sheep; and Meredith Judy plays Lamb.

Among the human characters, Bob Laytart and Rosie Caywood will play Homer and Edith Zuckerman; Roger Slade and Lisa Ridenour will play John and Martha Arable; and the state fair announcer will be Harrison County Judge Executive Alex Barnett.

The show will run at Rohs Opera House Thursday through Sunday, Sept. 25 - 28. Tickets will go on sale later in August, Smith said.

DRACULA

The cast for the harriCYN Theater Company’s production of Dracula will star Sean Whitaker as the famous vampire and Dave Dampier as the indomitable Professor Van Helsing.

Other cast members in key roles include Samuel Sinkhorn as Jonathan Harker; Kelsey Dacci as Harker’s fiancée, Mina; and Casey Newcomb as Lucy Westenra.

Jacob Sanders will play Renfield. Six other cast members will round out the field of players for the show.

There are several stage adaptations of the Bram Stoker novel, but the essential story of Dracula is a gothic romantic triangle between the title character, Mina and Jonathan.

The harriCYN group has organized an ambitious production schedule for the play in October, said Medearis Robertson, promotion manager for the production.

The show will run Friday and Saturday evenings beginning at 9 p.m. October 10 - 11 and 17 - 18. The play will be performed at the Old Jail on Pike Street to give the production the right atmosphere, Robertson said.

On Halloween night, Oct. 31, there will be a special 10 p.m. performance to celebrate the witching hour, she said.

Though the characters have been cast, volunteers are welcome to build sets, help with lighting and provide support for other technical aspects of the show, Robertson said.

Crabgrass’s history reveals its multiple uses

After the big rain we had, I hit the weeds, most of which involved wrangling ever-expanding globs of crabgrass. Yes, this is the time when crabgrass rears its ugly head and begins to creep through our fescue lawns, sneak into our cultivated beds and, when we’re not looking, reseeds itself to ensure the continuation of the species.

Okay, maybe a little melodramatic but my hands still hurt from all that pulling.

Since crabgrass is an annual grass, it is all about seed. Pre-emergents in the early spring will certainly help but what many people neglect to do is to reapply the control every six weeks.

Pre-emergents prevent seed from germinating but the active ingredient only remains viable in the soil for about 4 to 6 weeks. We will use corn gluten as a pre-emergent in our trouble spots to augment our

Jeneen Wiche
Columnist
www.SwallowRailFarm.com

other weeding efforts.

A little elbow grease goes a long way.

When you see a clump of the light green blades begin to creep through the fescue pull it up.

With all the moisture in the soil (for most of us) you will find it quite easy to “weed” small patches of crabgrass. Gingerly pull the creeping blades that have developed roots out of their entanglement with your fescue.

Once you have loosened these, you can better grip the main, center roots and pull it right out. Reseeding of bare areas after the crabgrass is removed can be done at the end of the month.

For more significant crabgrass problems, you will need to apply a herbicide labeled for crabgrass.

As much as I hate using pesticides, this is where you may have to break the rules to manage the problem.

Products are most effective when the crabgrass is in the earlier stage of growth. Apply two to three times at 10-day intervals.

Continue to use pre-emergent controls to prevent any existing seed from germinating.

Getting it under control usually takes several years of using control methods and proper mowing techniques. Don’t mow the grass too short and fertilize in the fall of the year to encourage healthy fescue.

cue.

Once you get your lawn back, don’t continue with bad habits.

You may be quite surprised at the history of crabgrass and how it was first introduced in the United States.

Actually it came across the ocean with immigrants from Europe who had cultivated crabgrass for the seed.

Crabgrass seed was used like millet ... a common ingredient in porridges and breads.

When its use in the kitchen declined due to the more efficient crops of corn and wheat (it took 100,000 crabgrass seeds to make a pound), crabgrass was used as cattle fodder.

As the native summer fodder browned out, the green crabgrass proved appealing to cattle.

Our sheep like it so I don’t mind a little out in the pastures, but we are still battling it in mulched areas and walking paths.

Crabgrass declined in use as fodder by the turn of the century, but the invasive grass had already planted its seed.

In a relatively short period of time, crabgrass has spread throughout the entire United States.

Once we started to have manicured lawns, crabgrass really went crazy. It was more noticeable, for one thing, but more than anything else, the fact that we were mowing our lawns short meant that the crabgrass seed could make contact with the soil at a much higher percentage (that’s one of the reasons why you should not mow shorter than 2 1/5 inches).

Yet another lesson in how human activity can change the environment of a continent.

New horticulture agent is ‘breath of fresh air’ for county

BY KAYLA PICKRELL, INTERN

Jessica Barnes has had a busy summer – graduating from the University of Kentucky in May, getting married in June and starting her new job as horticulture agent for the Harrison County Extension Office in July.

The Connersville native started as an intern in the summer of 2013 under Gary Carter, the agriculture and natural resources agent for the Extension office. Quickly she learned that she was needed as people began to ask her questions about their plants.

“I’ve always been interested in growing anything that grew,” Barnes said. “And, my background fit the county’s needs.”

A horticulture agent is a new concept for the state, Barnes said. Not many counties have them. The Central Kentucky district, however, has the highest percentage of horticulture agents in the state, she said.

“It thought it would be a good position to have because last summer I was able to answer a lot of questions about horticulture,” Barnes said. “We’ve been blessed to have this position.”

As more people know about the new position, more people are contacting her and coming into the extension office, Barnes said.

“I’m getting a lot more calls,”

Barnes said.

So far, Barnes has not had a problem she couldn’t fix.

“Some of it is challenging when people (brought plants) with new diseases,” Barnes said, “but I like a challenge.”

When there is a disease Barnes cannot identify, she sends the plant to the plant diagnostic lab at the University of Kentucky.

Barnes is trying to get the community to adopt different practices when it comes to plant diseases.

“I would like for the community to take an interest in preventing diseases instead of spending a lot of money just trying to cure it the one time,” Barnes said.

Recently, blight has struck most farmers’ tomatoes and that is the task she is tackling at the moment. She also was recently contacted by a farmer in California.

“It’s weird how you can reach out,” Barnes said. “As time goes by, I’ll probably be helping those in surrounding counties more.”

Barnes is hoping that once the state realizes how important horticulture is, the more positions will open up in Kentucky.

Barnes has a bachelor’s degree in plant and soil sciences from UK, but she hopes to continue her education and try for her master’s in the spring.

Barnes is undecided about what her master’s degree will be in, and she is going to let the county decide.

“I’m trying to see what people need and if there is anything important that I’m not familiar with,” Barnes said.

Barnes’ first year will be about getting to know the community, but she has big plans for the county.

Horticulture was originally something Carter managed, but Barnes took over and is helping Carter focus more on cattle.

“He’s happy I’m taking the trees and shrubs from him,” Barnes said.

After the first year, Barnes said people can look forward to programs in gardening, lawn care and plant-related activities. For now, Barnes will be focusing on building relationships.

“She’s a breath of fresh air,” Carter said. “I’m sure the local people are happy.”

“She’s very knowledgeable and willing to learn, and that’s what it takes.”

2013 Jim Claypool Conservation Art and Writing contest winners named

Mission: H2O! This was the theme for the 2013 Jim Claypool Conservation Art and Writing Contest sponsored by the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation and Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts.

This year, every school in the county participated in the contests.

There were 206 entries in the writing contest between the middle school and high school, and 335 entries in the art contest from every elementary school.

To increase participation, the Harrison County Conservation District co-sponsored a Teacher Participation Contest with the Harrison County Farm Bureau Board.

Teachers with 95 percent classroom participation or better were entered in a drawing at each school to receive $100.

The winners of this contest were: HCMS-Kim Jenkins; Northside-Pam Cunningham; Eastside-Sherry Pawley; Southside-Lou Ann Boyers; and St. Edwards-Debbie McKinley.

The entries are judged first at a school level, the top three entries are then submitted to the local conservation district where first through third place is awarded for each school.

Then, all of the school entries are judged at a county level. The first place county winners in the art and writing contests are then entered into the area contest, state contest and finally the national contest.

School winners receive a certificate, a t-shirt, their returned entry and a monetary award for their participation in the contest.

This year, Victoria

Gasser, fifth grade from St. Edward Catholic School, placed first in Harrison County in the art contest as well as first place in the Area 5 contest, winning a total of $145.

Madison Kellione, seventh grade from Harrison County Middle School, placed first in Harrison County in the writing contest as well as second place in the state contest, winning a total of $245.

Finishing out the top three in the county for the writing contest were Holly Winkle-HCHS, second place, and Hannah Perkins-HCMS, third place.

Maroon/White Game Friday in Ingles Stadium

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

The annual Maroon/White game for the Harrison County Thorobreds will be played this Friday evening on Lawson Field in Ingles Stadium.

The game will begin at 7 p.m. with live play between evenly matched squads.

Coach Jim Carr was not sure of the exact format for the scrimmage but said that there will be a lot of players seeing action.

“We have some good depth this year,” said Carr in a Monday morning conversation. “Camp proved to be really competitive with not much difference between who may be penciled in as a starter and the back up. It is a good problem to have, one that we haven’t had in the last few years.”

The action will be live, actual football with the exception of the kicking game.

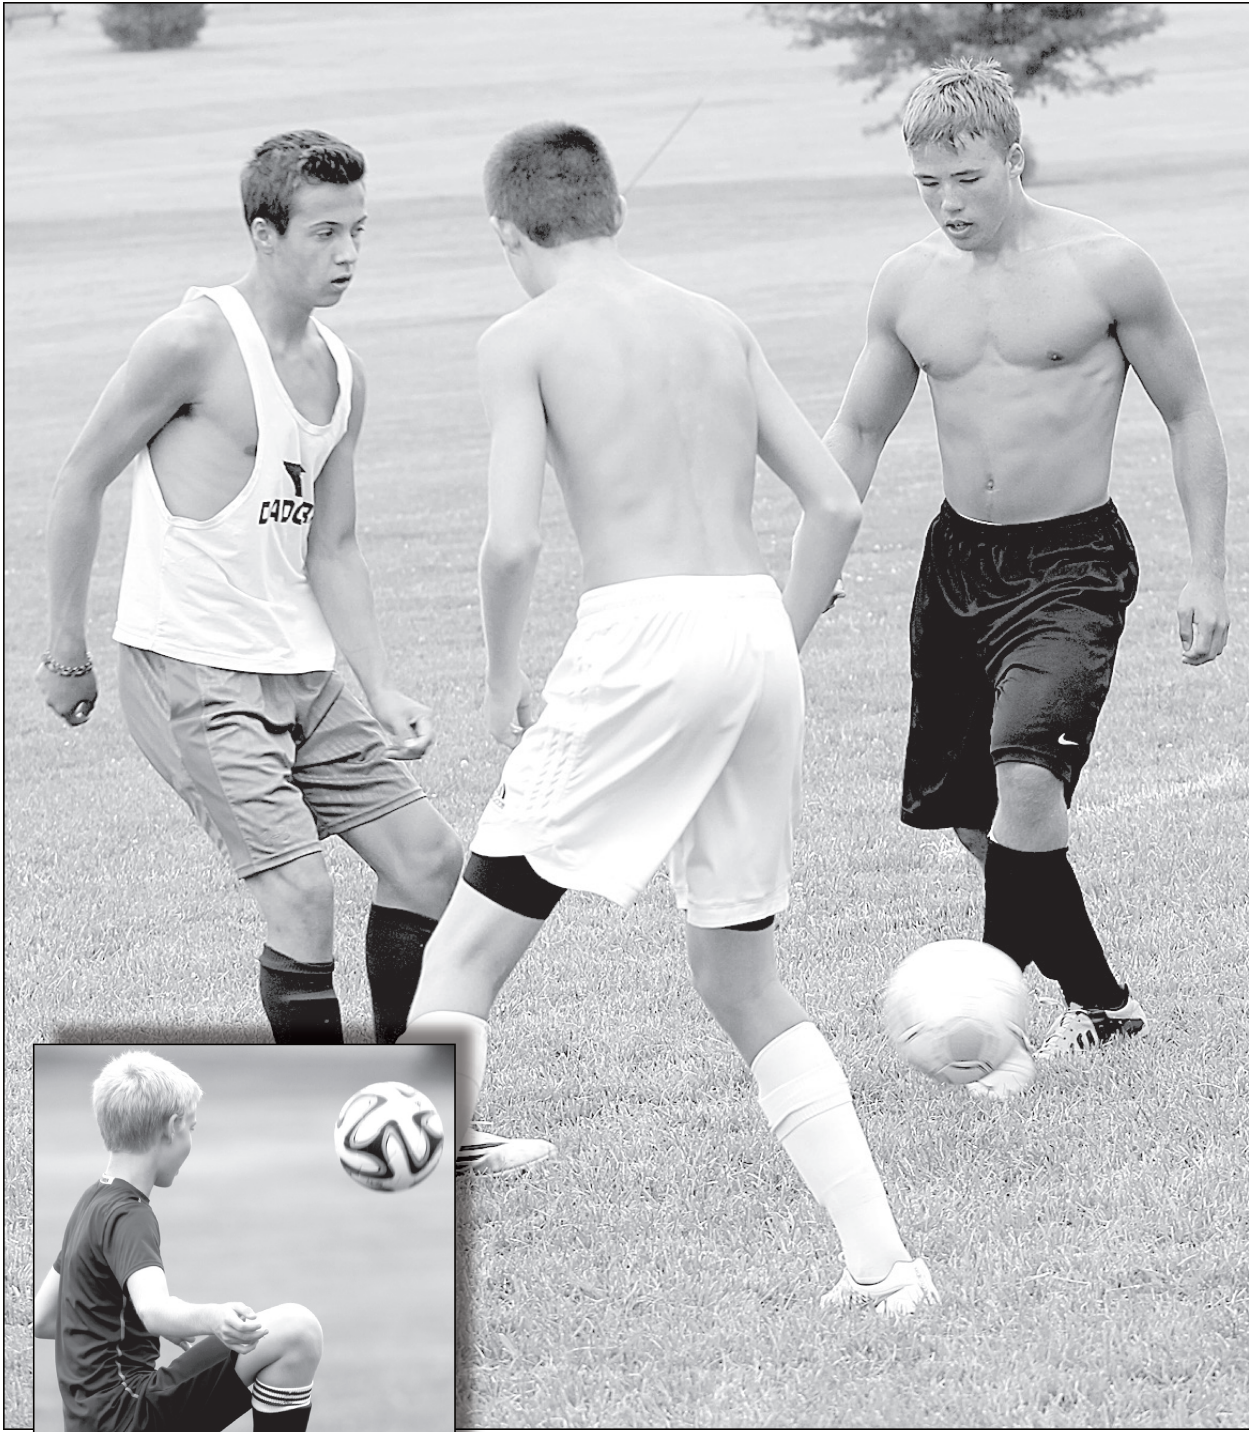

“We will kick and go down field but there will not be any run backs,” noted Carr. “That will be for kick offs and punts.”

There will be freshmen and varsity participants with the younger players mixing in with the varsity.

The Thorobreds will be displaying a new offense directed by a new quarterback as senior Mark Taylor and sophomores Luke Slucher and Malcolm Walker will all see time as the signal caller.

Camp last weekend displayed some good size throughout the linemen and linebackers along with ample team speed.

There will be no admission charged and concessions will be available.

Jesse Klapheke, Cory Moore and Andrew Norfleet execute a drill as part of Coach Nick Hill’s practice session for the Harrison County Thorobreds Tuesday at LeBus Field.

Harrison County volleyball has little experience in 2014

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

Coach Bill Faulkner greeted large numbers for the 2014 volleyball season as 27 players make up the JV/varsity roster. That is the good news.

The not-so-good news is that only three of the players returning have any varsity experience to speak of and what experience they have is not in the position they are scheduled to play this year.

Returning setter, junior Casey Wallace is back to play the libero spot. Junior Payton Hollar will play defensive specialist and former libero junior Sara Beth Sowder moves to outside hitter for the 2014 season.

The volleyball Fillies lost four starters and six seniors overall from last season’s 28-10 district champions.

The Fillies defeated George Rogers Clark in the region before falling to eventual region champion Campbell County.

Gone from that team are

COACH BILL FAULKNER

Samantha Adkins, Jordan Doram, Lexis Doyle, Mallory Hunter, Lauren Shepherd and Sarah Tanner. The starters were big hitters and made up the front line for last year’s edition of Fillies volleyball.

This season, Faulkner and his staff are counting on two seniors with little experience, two sophomores and an eighth grader to start matches along with the three juniors who return.

Seniors Amber Darnell and Haley Evans will play middle hitter, sophomores Alex Hassall and Whitney Whitaker will be outside hitters, and eighth grader Emma Goodin will hold down the key setter position.

Faulkner is also counting early on to use junior Aubrey Coppage and sophomore Hunter Griffith coming off the bench.

“Others will play as the season goes on but right now we have large numbers with no experience, noted the 14-year veteran coach. “We are just not too deep right now.

“I believe that our strengths are serving, ball handling and defense with the offense far behind right now,” admitted Faulkner. “As in other sports, it sometimes takes the offense awhile to catch up with the defense.”

The schedule began unofficially last weekend when the girls traveled to the Bluegrass State Games to play six matches.

They met two of the top 25 teams in the state on Friday losing to Central Hardin and Lafayette.

On Saturday, they defeated Hopkinsville and lost to Corbin, Franklin County and Bryan Station.

“The games after Friday were all close except for the Bryan Station match up,” said Faulkner. “Franklin County Hopkinsville and Harrison County were all evenly matched. I don’t know how Corbin got into our division. They were really good last year and had almost everyone back.”

The scrimmages this year are on the road as the Fillies travel to Paris to face Bourbon County in a freshman, JV, varsity triple header on Tuesday, Aug. 12.

The following Saturday they travel to Rowan County to face three teams in a round robin scrimmage.

The real season begins on the road at Pendleton County Aug. 19. Aug. 21 will be the first home match as Nicholas County comes to the Hilltop.

Faulkner sees Robertson County as the favorite in the 38th District this year. The next three are all fairly even in the coach’s eyes to date.

He sees the northern district teams as once again the teams to beat in the region. Defending champ Campbell County has a new coach as Robin Curry moved from George Rogers Clark to take over with the Lady Camels. Other region contenders with new coaches are Montgomery County as well as George Rogers Clark.

The Harrison County coaching staff that joins Faulkner is long time assistant J.P. Switzer, Lonnie Tolson, Bobby Dunaway, and Alicia Sprague.

Breds’ slow start leads to poor finish Monday

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

After finishing 14th of 22 teams at Picadome in Lexington Friday, the Harrison County Thorobreds finished last in the 17-team Flyer Classic in Frankfort Monday.

Friday’s tournament was hosted by Lafayette, who finished 16th in the event won by St. Xavier. Trinity finished second. Covington Catholic was third in the meet which was dominated by private schools as five of the top 10 participants were private institutions.

Jake Jones led the Thorobreds with 79 with Reese Asher next at 85 followed by Will Hicks and Peyton Browning both with 89. Anthony Vascotto had a 105 to round out the Harrison County players.

The team total of 342 was 54 over par for the Thorobreds. The winning Tigers of St. Xavier shot 293 or five over.

Monday’s morning round doomed the Thorobreds as they ballooned to a 359 in the round which began at 7:30 a.m.

The afternoon round was only slightly better as the Breds came in with a 357 though overall they played better.

Jones led the morning round with 81 followed by Asher with 86, Browning with 90, Vascotto 102 and Hicks 104.

Asher was the leader in the afternoon with an 82 followed by Jones with 87. Hicks improved to 93 with Browning shooting 95 and Vascotto 97.

Franklin County won the team title with 594 as the host school also had the meet medalist, Jacob Cook, who shot 142 for the 36 holes.

Jones and Asher were the top golfers for the Breds with a 168 total. Harrison County shot a team score of 716.

Harrison County’s next meet will be Wednesday at Mason County.

New coach greets experienced cross country squad

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER

Deanna Lunsford wanted to try something a little different. She had been an assistant to Harrison County Middle School Track Coach Alicia Glenn for five years when the cross country job became available.

Coach Danny Simpson had retired after a lifetime of coaching. Lunsford had just begun to run herself plus her daughter Tamara was on the cross country team.

“It seemed like something that I would like and I wanted to help the runners,” said Lunsford. “I am learning on the job and it is exciting.”

Simpson has been very helpful for the new coach as has Lesa Palmer, who is the head of the boosters, she said.

The Harrison County cross country program lost seven runners from last year’s team including two-time state meet qualifier Grant Carr.

The boys’ team also lost Harry Smith and Nathan Radford while the Fillies lost two of their best performers in Erin Bradford and Caylin Mattox along with the steady performers Kayla Joy and Samantha Workman.

“We certainly have a lot of work to do to try to replace the seniors that graduated,” noted Lunsford.

The Fillies have only four runners out right now

Good coaching and maybe not so good coaching

Before I get into my thought for this week, I want to relay a story given to me by Barb Snopek as she received from one of the participants in the Burley Belles Tournament.

A lady from northern Kentucky who was playing in the tournament had a flat tire on her way and stopped in one of our local establishments to have it fixed or replaced. She was in danger of being late for her tee time but misfortune struck at the most inopportune time for her.

Misfortune became good fortune as the friendly people at the garage brought her and her clubs to the Cynthiana Country Club so she would be on time and then brought the car to the club for her when the tire was repaired or replaced.

How much does service like this cost? In Cynthiana in at least one business it cost $10. The lady golfer was simply amazed with both the service and the cost from the Cynthiana business establishment.

The story did not include the name of the business but "they know who they are." This kind of action by a business gives meaning to the phrase "small town hospitality."

Thank you from all of us, who ever you are.

I noticed in the National Football League rosters that there are at least 17 players listed who played college ball at the University of Kentucky.

This brought to my mind a question of coaching ability at the university or lack of ability since the program has been less than successful yet the NFL is full of former players.

I don't believe that this is on the current coach, though in my mind he still has a lot to prove, but on the former head coaches before Stoops.

Coaching means so much in developing players from youth leagues to college ball. The old timers around Cynthiana recall fondly the days of Little League when Jimmy Whitaker, Donnie Fight, Clarence Jones, Howard McCullough and others were the coaches.

In youth football, it was Ed Miller, Huck Turner, Garnett Furnish, Jimmy Whitaker, John Swinford and some others who were the back bone of the successful "old days" of football.

The high school coaching of Larry Thornton, Woodie Crum, Bill McKee, Jim Way, Buck Vest and others is always mentioned when the heyday of Harrison County and Cynthiana sports is the topic.

In fact, players still remember quotes such as Coach Way saying "They should not call it football, they should call it hit. Now get out there and hit someone."

We have some good coaches now in the system as far as the high school goes but the question of how prepared the youth programs are getting the young people is a good one.

Some are doing well and working hard at the right way to coach the players. Some have work to do but changes are coming that should be a help.

The idea of youth football being based from the elementary schools is a good start, which should have more participation leading to more players for the middle and high school programs.

The reassertion of the Pony League in the youth baseball is a positive move.

Now if we can free the youth baseball from the "my kid is an all star" mentality and play more games as teams instead of stopping every thing so all stars can play, baseball will move forward.

I believe that we need more for the 8 through 12 year old girls, but I hear that is being discussed.

One of the keys to the successful leagues is coaching, but it is by far not the only key.

Proper parental involvement, good clean well supervised ball parks and plenty of players are also key elements. They all work together for success and having one of the elements or two will sometimes lull the people of authority into a false sense of accomplishment.

We cannot let that happen here.

with the fifth runner Rachel Eckert sidelined with an injury.

Two juniors, Tamara Lunsford and Chelsea Bowman and two sophomores, Abby Cooper and Taylor Harney currently make up the Fillies squad along with Eckert.

The Thorobreds have several veterans back led by senior Shane Palmer. Palmer came on strong at the end of last track season and big things are expected from him.

Junior Ross Smith returns to run along side Palmer as the top runner for the Breds.

Sophomores Isiah and Jacob Brueggen also return along with freshman Daniel Craig who had some success last season.

Eighth grader Thomas Morris and sixth grade brother, Jacob, along with seventh grader, Michael Massey, are the remainder of the runners who are out right now.

Lunsford expects that there may be some other athletes still planning to join the team before the season officially begins.

The first meet will be Aug. 26 when the Harrison County squad competes in the Chick-Fil-a Classic held at Asbury College in Wilmore.

Thorobreds Soccer Alumni Night is Aug. 7

The annual Alumni Night soccer match will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 7, on LeBus Field. This event will showcase both the 2014 Thorobreds and past players who turn out to do battle with their younger counterparts.

Coach Nick Hill and the Breds are hoping for a good turnout of alums and fans to give the season a rousing start.

Any former Thorobred who would like to play should contact Hill at 859-588-0773. It is important that Hill knows which former players are coming because he intends to limit the roster so that all who come to play get ample playing time.

Youth football forms available

Until school is in session, anyone wishing to pick up the sign-up sheets for youth football may do so at two locations in Cynthiana. Joe Cochran's State Farm Insurance Office and Licking Valley Dentistry will have the forms available during their regular business hours. After school is back in session, the forms will be available in the elementary school offices.

Extension office will receive $250,000 from state for county farmers

By KAYLA PICKRELL, INTERN

The Kentucky Agricultural Finance Corporation approved Harrison County for a $250,000 loan to be used for agricultural infrastructure, according to a press release from the Governor's Office of Agricultural Policy.

The Harrison County Extension Office receives these funds after the Kentucky State Fair, which is then given to county farmers after an extensive application process, said Gary Carter, agent for agriculture and natural resources.

"These funds will be used toward anything that will help and increase a farmer's income," Carter said. "We want to make sure that it is something long-lasting and not short-term."

The loan will cover permanent fixtures, such as fencing and hay barn construction, as well as genetics on cattle.

In early September, Carter said the applications should be available to farmers. After all applications are turned in, a group of eight to nine farmers on a board with the Extension office, will look through the applications and score them based on the applicants' answers.

Each of the board members will pass the applications around to make sure farmers are scored evenly.

The Extension office has not been able to advertise the application yet because the funds have not been granted, which should take place at the Kentucky State Fair.

Those with the highest scores will pass through the first round and be able to use the funds first, Carter said. There will be numerous rounds until all of the funds have been used.

"The questions are weighted toward the full time, independent farmer that has no other job," Carter said. "That's not saying that if you have another job you won't get it."

The reason Carter thinks that is because one question asks what portion of the farmer's income comes from farming.

Last year, 120 farmers were able to use the funds granted by the state.

"This is something that a large number of people have been able to participate," Carter said.

Carter said the process will take approximately six months. Tenant farmers are also able to apply.

The average Harrison County farm is 150 acres. "It's very difficult to raise a family on 150 acres of farm, especially with tobacco," Carter said.

The funds come at a price for the farmers though. The loan works on a 50-50 cost share, Carter said. So if it is a $5,000 project, the farmer has to come up with $2,500 of it and the Extension office gives the other $2,500.

The first year the loan was available, the Extension office was granting $5,000, meaning the farmer would have to come up with the other $5,000. Now it is at $2,500, Carter said.

Carter said the loan will come as a surprise to farmers this year because of the large tobacco companies and the lawsuits associated with them.

"It was determined that Kentucky didn't do a good enough job of collecting funds from small tobacco companies," Carter said. "This is primarily the money that comes from that lawsuit."

An example of the use of the funds can be seen throughout Harrison County, Carter said. A lot of hay is not out on the fields anymore because they are stored in hay barns. Farmers are saving money and buying less hay because the way they are stored, they can use less because it is healthy and higher quality.

"I don't see these funds going away," Carter said. "The only way I can see that is if the state decides to use the funds for something else."

Unusually cool weather spurs tomato blight

By JESSICA BARNES, CO. EXT. AGENT FOR HORTICULTURE

The unusually cool weather for July has spurred several problems for vegetable growers throughout the county and state.

One of the most common questions coming through the Extension Office this week has been for tomatoes. Growers are seeing the older leaves of tomato plants having brown lesions, wilting, and also in some severe cases the fruit have dark brown rings show up. This is a very common fungal disease, called early blight, and is occurring throughout Kentucky. This disease tends to really show itself when the weather is cooler than normal, like it has been this year. Early blight will always start on the lower leaves of the plant and if not controlled, will spread up the vine to the newer growth. This fungal disease can be controlled by using a fixed copper spray. The product label should always be followed when applying the product to the plants and good coverage is necessary to control this disease.

To help prevent this disease in coming years, growers should remove infected tomato residues, control weeds, and rotate the tomato crop to a new area in the garden. If there are any questions concerning this disease or any other diseases feel free to contact the Harrison County Extension Office at 234-5510.

USDA extends enrollment deadline

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) announces that the enrollment deadline for the 2012 and 2013 Emergency Assistance for Livestock, Honeybees and Farm-Raised Fish Program (ELAP) has been extended to Aug. 15, 2014. Originally, program sign-up was scheduled to end Aug. 1.

The new deadline gives livestock, honeybee, and farm-raised fish producers who experienced losses because of disease, adverse weather, wildfires or colony collapse disorder between Oct. 1, 2011 and Sept. 30, 2013, an additional two weeks to enroll in ELAP.

Producers are encouraged to contact the FSA service center at 103 Rodgers Park Dr., 859-234-2646 or visit FSA's website at www.fsa.usda.gov for additional information regarding ELAP.

Kid's College provided hands-on learning

With 150 Kid's College students enrolling at the MCTC/Licking Valley Campus, the week rolled off to a rousing start. The traditional summer week of educational challenges along with many fun activities offered the students a variety of choices for classes.

One of the major emphases at Kid's College is that students are provided hands-on learning opportunities.

Kids performed skits, songs and had a dance-off. They also explored the elements of disasters on the planet, including volcanoes.

The Cynthiana Fire Department taught a class with the arson dog and the smoke trailer.

Students investigated and researched culinary options as well as put their hands and eyes to honing their photography skills.

Field trips were taken to the fire department, recycling center and Flat

Run Park where they worked on water discoveries.

The photography students published a picture gazette of the week's photo work.

Kids built a town to demonstrate how mudslides can create deadly disasters. These were just a few of the opportunities and fun offered during the week.

The Workforce personnel for Licking Valley Campus, Leigh Ann Cockrell, Lennie Kenny and Leslie Storie wish to thank the community for supporting this challenging educational experience for children. They also extend appreciation for the many hours devoted to the activity by the faculty and staff and teachers for Kid's College, parents, grandparents and friends.

Fall registration continues at Licking Valley Campus through Aug. 18

It's not too late to register for fall classes at Maysville Community and Technical College/Licking Valley Center (MCTC/LVC).

Registration for fall classes is taking place now and continues until the semester begins on Aug. 18.

The fall semester will also have a variety of classes from which to choose. Some of the classes being offered are art, nursing, biology, business, communication, writing, history, early childhood, fitness, math, psychology, reading, religion, Spanish and sociology.

There are also classes offered online or in person or hybrid, which is a combination of online and in person.

In order to register for classes, students will need to complete the admissions process.

First, students apply for admission and make arrangement for their transcripts to be sent to MCTC/LVC.

After that, most students need to complete their financial aid form online at www.fafsa.ed.gov.

When these steps are completed, students then schedule their compass exam.

Finally, students meet with an advisor to select the classes that would be most beneficial and fulfill requirements for the degree or certificate program of their choice.

"Fall is an exciting time to get started on fulfilling that long held dream of completing your education," said K. Bruce Florence, LVC campus director. "We hope you will come see us and let us help you get on your way to realizing your hopes for this next step in your life."
